about

I'm strangely over 20 years deep working as a professional freelance designer. Mostly within the realms of ux, ui, product, digital, and video. Now more than ever the ground underneath this role is constantly moving, shifting, dramatically changing shape and form. One constant of my experience with digital design, has been the never ending morphing landscape concerning job titles, expectations, and software adoption.

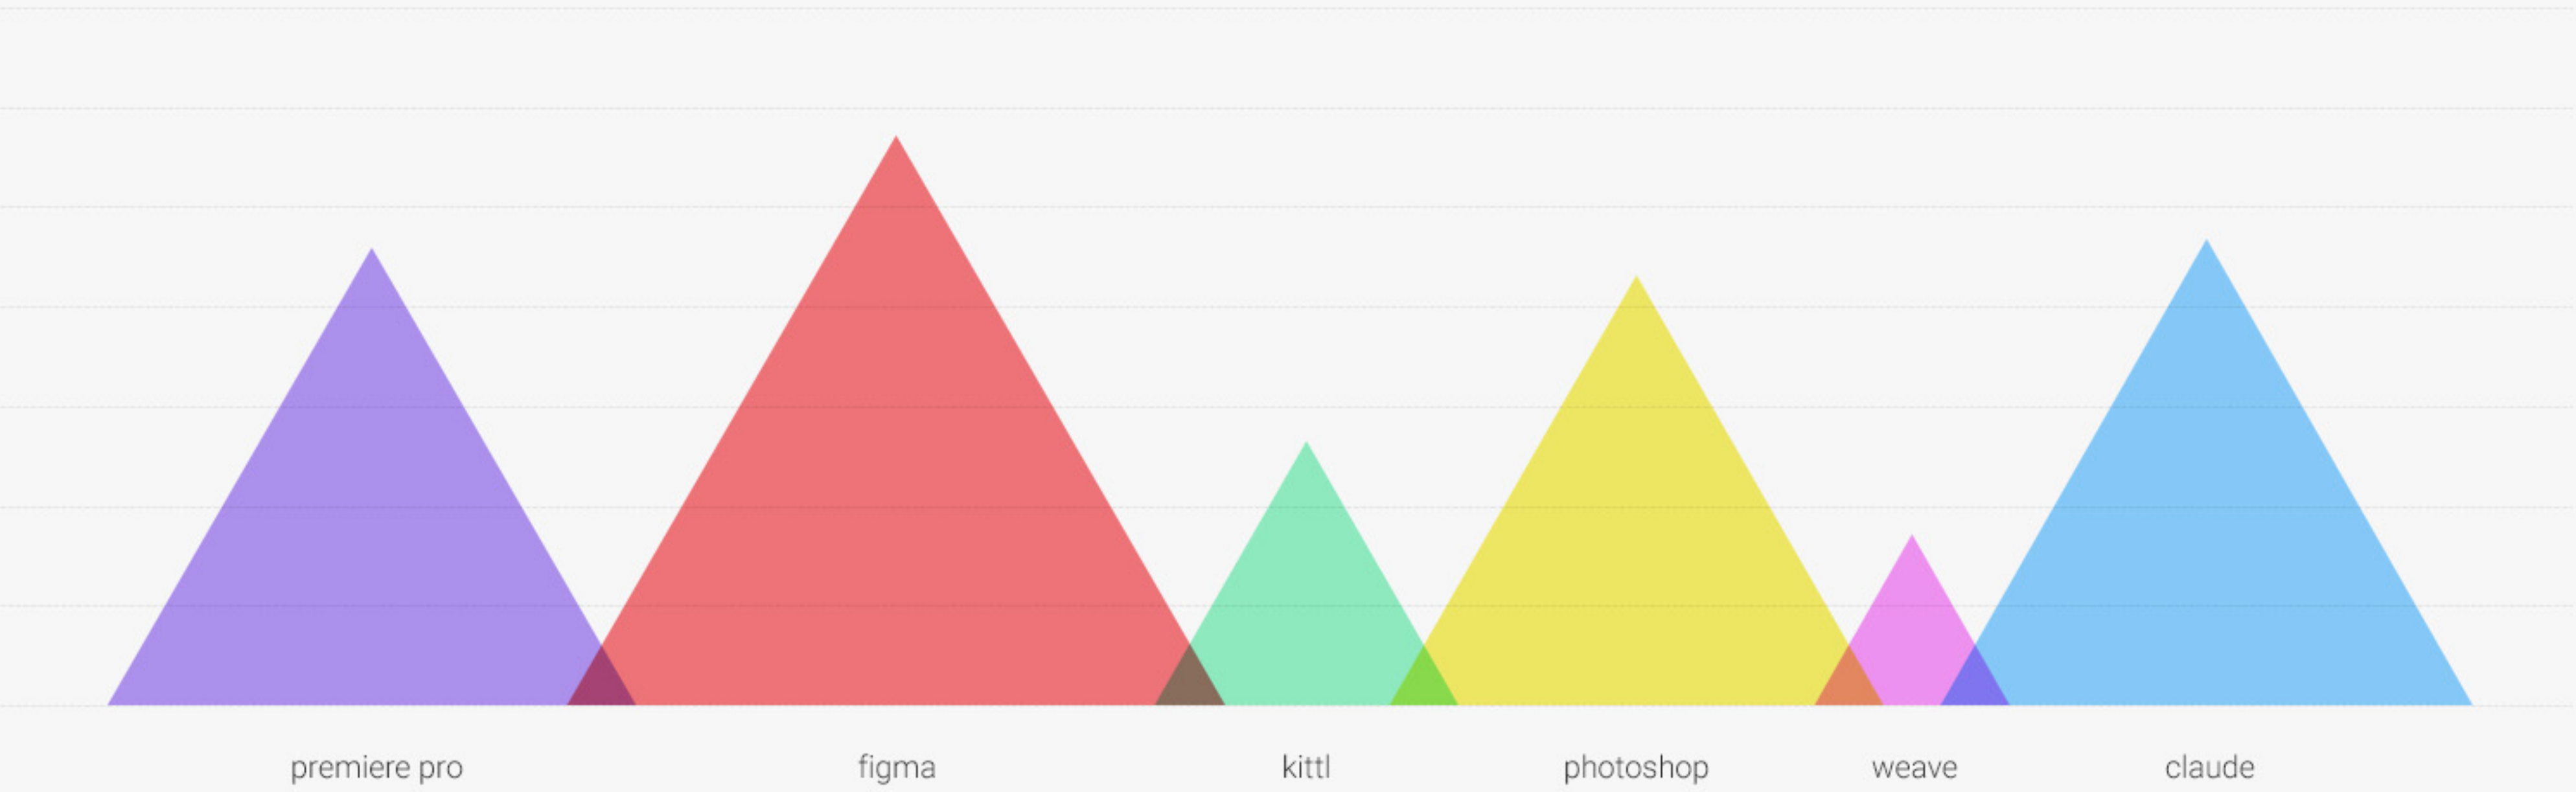

Over a number of years much of my experience has focused and revolved around e-commerce, augmented reality experiences, and b2b solutions. I've been luckily enough to have had design opportunities in most industries over the course of my extensive creative commercial life from finance, hospitality, sports, travel, fashion, music and retail.

Predominately I now focus on remote only roles. But depending on the location and length of a booking I can travel for meetings and any other vital creative interactions. I'm very comfortable and seasoned at parachuting into any new or existing creative teams with ease. I also have extensive experience presenting, and taking direct feedback from clients and important department heads.

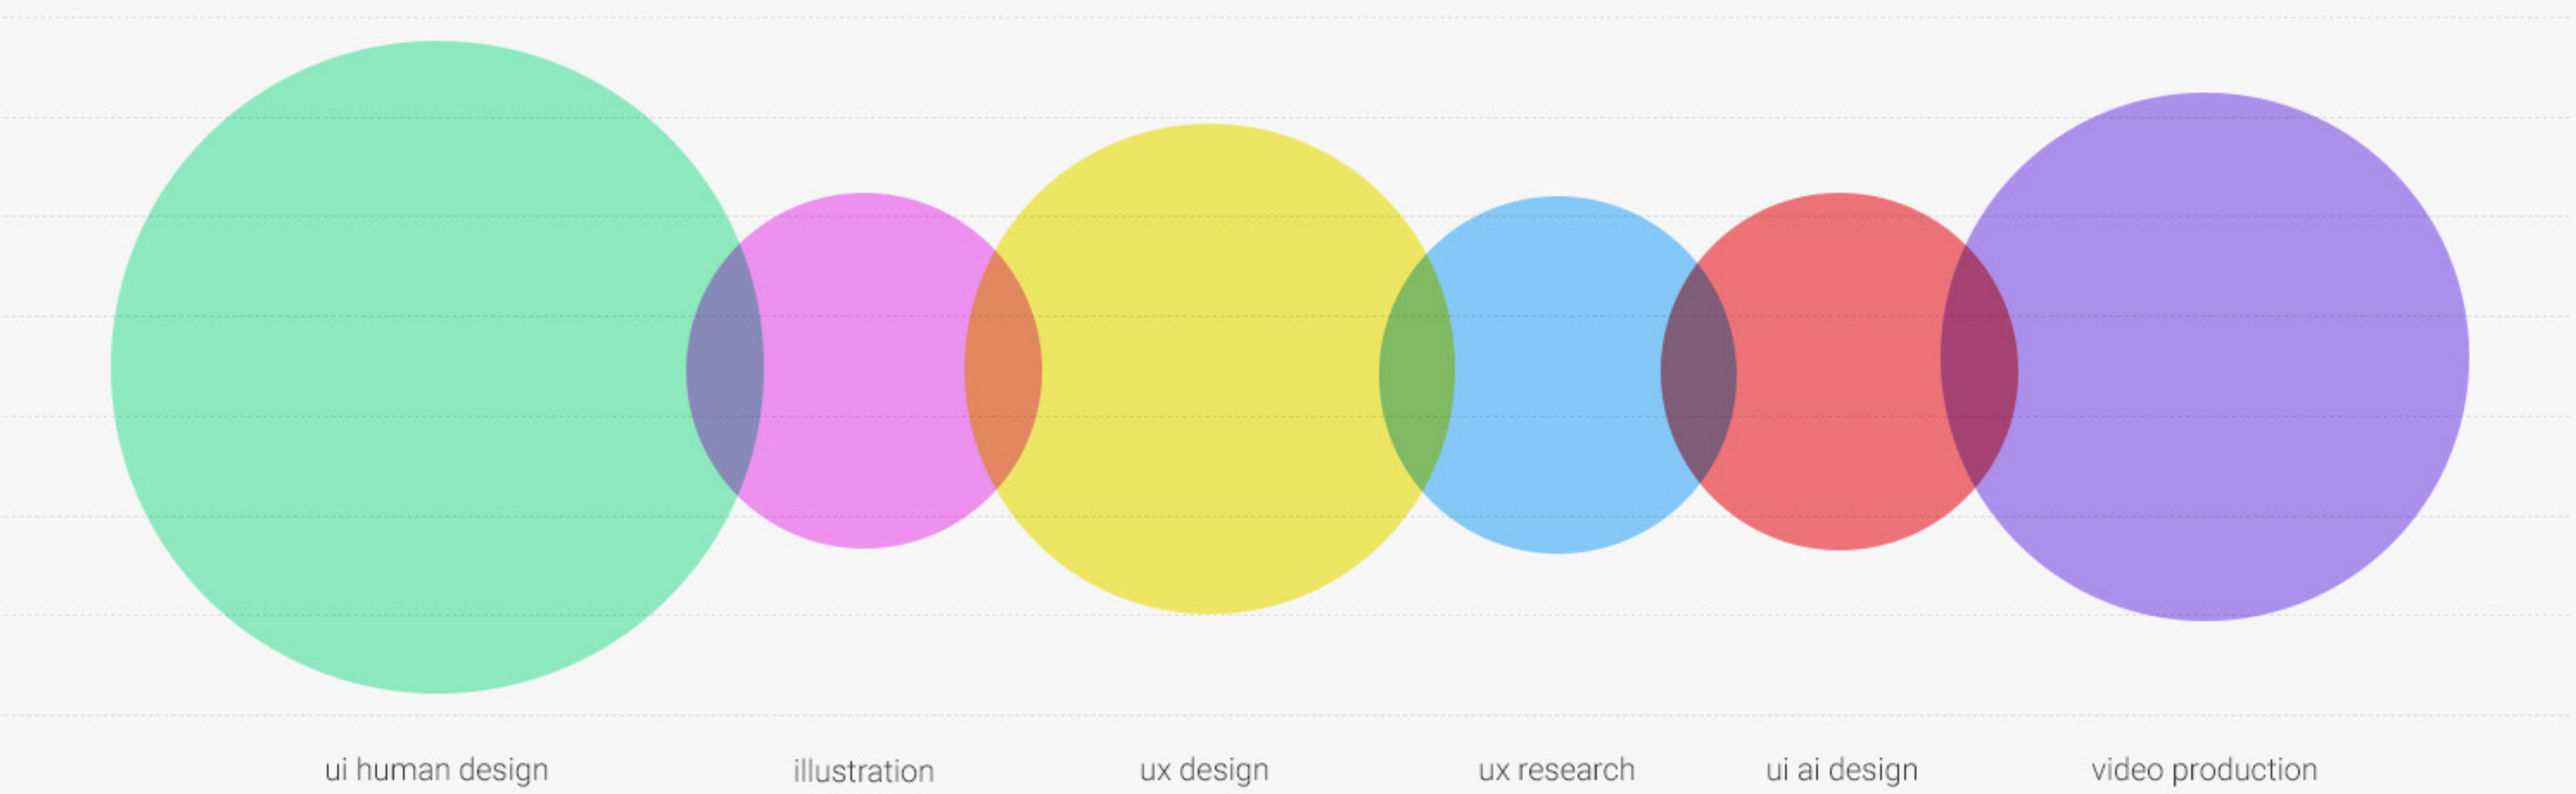

Whether under the banner of ux, ui, or product design, I lean more on the design side. I've had experience with research and user testing. But i'm most comfortable actually producing designs be it wireframes, ui, prototypes or video.

About Us

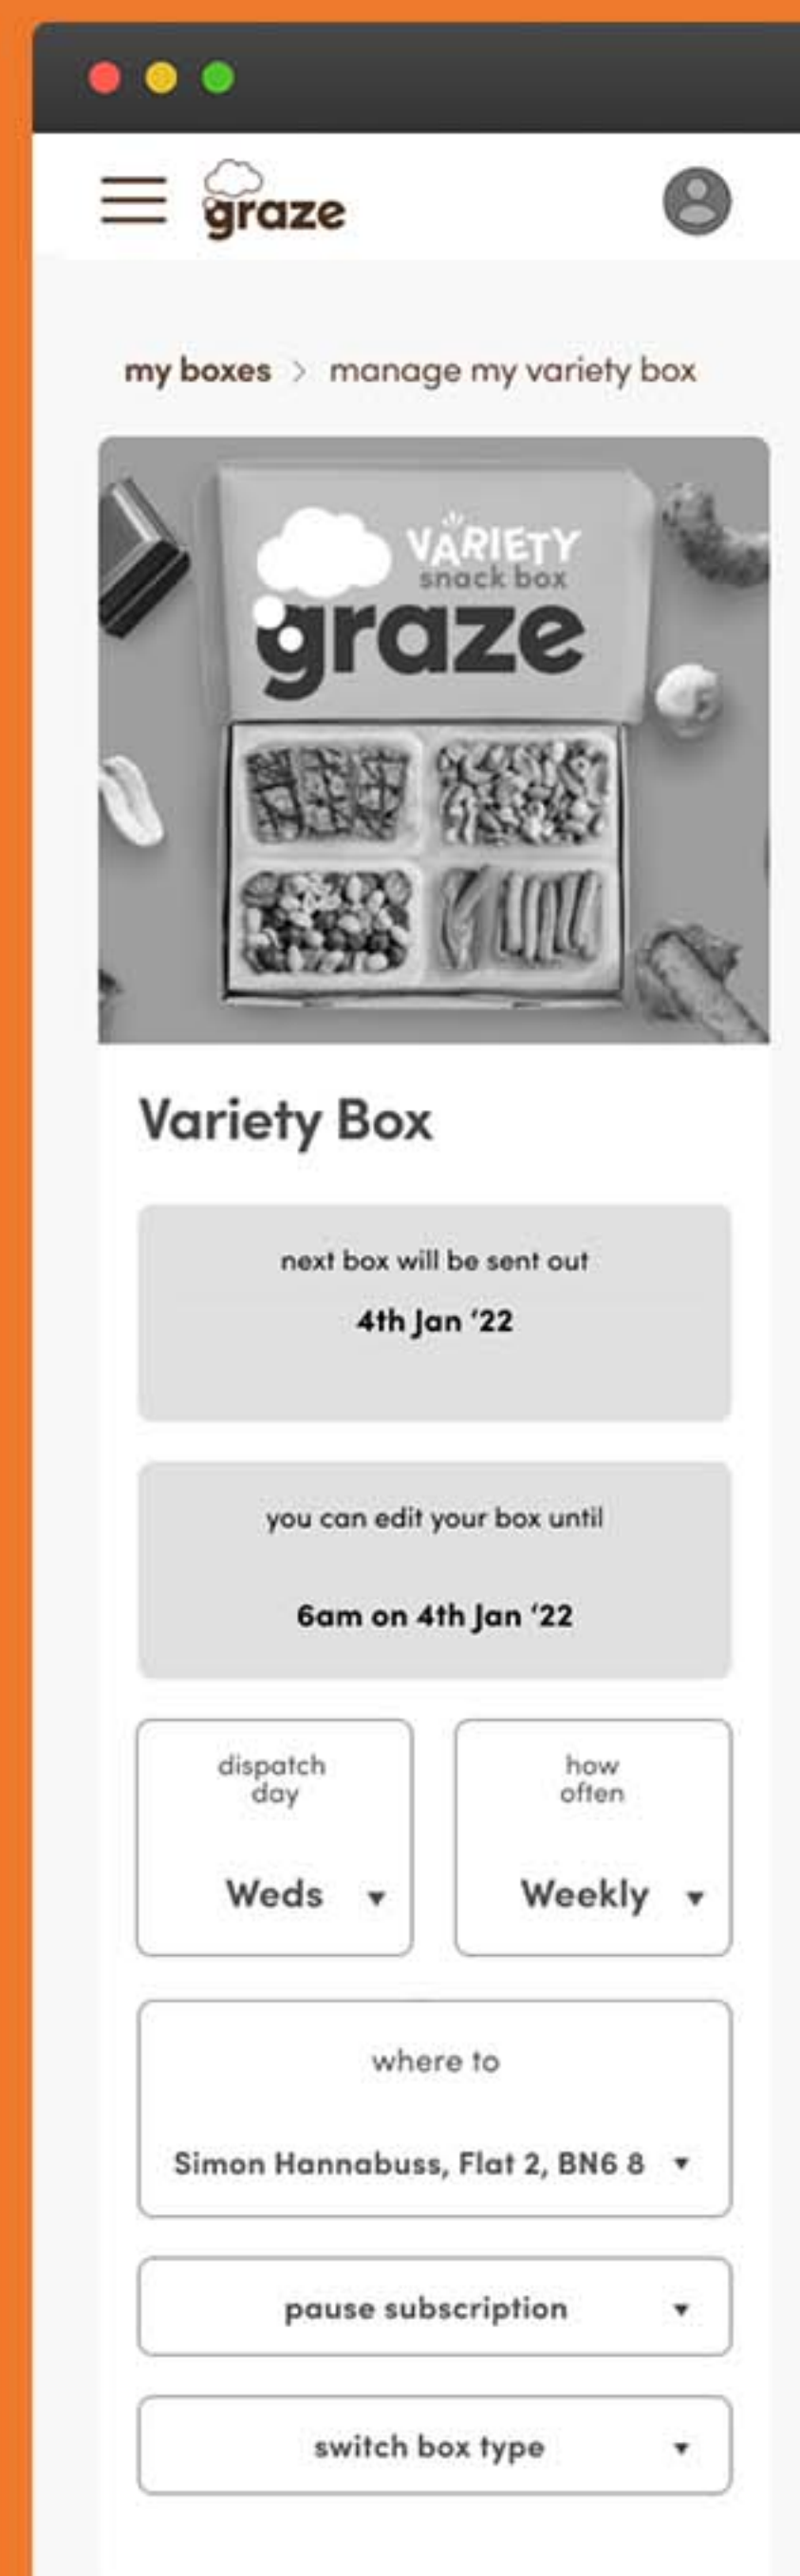

This week marks a unique and very special development at Thatchers Cider. Alongside their range of Somerset ciders, Thatchers' love of apples has led them to craft their first Gin. Cuckoo Design were asked to create the unique brand name and packaging for this new spirit.

Director Lee Cook comments: "It's this unique spirit deserved a unique approach to every thing. The solution was found at the heart of everything Thatchers do - their stunning Somerset Orchards. Thatchers' Orchard Cut Apple Gin is affectionately a son of this Orchard. Using an innovative approach made of real wood, the label appears as a sign from the forest but then fully reveals the bottle as it is. The first batch is the limited edition Apple Gin, distilled with Kary apples, are individually numbered."

What's Unique?
It's the first spirit brand to feature a full 100% real wood label. British cider maker Thatchers has released its first ever gin made with apple cider, tapping into an ever growing trend for real gin and diverse variants. Crafted with cider from Thatchers' Kary apples, the gin is distilled by the award-winning English Spirit Distillery, using a selection of botanicals, as well as fresh apple, to give it a distinct flavour.
